Vandals beat up local man's memorial

Small tribute in local park to Bill Wingfield is destroyed, but replacement is considered

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

It's often easier to destroy than it is to create.

The city arborist and the local historical society combined last year to create a memorial for Bill Wingfield, a local citizen-naturalist. Recently, though, unknown vandals smashed that memorial at Circle Park. The park, as round as its name implies, is located along Alabama Avenue at Circle Street.

"We didn't realize how many jerks have time on their hands to go out and cause problems," said Wingfield's widow, Jeri Hughes Wingfield. "You can't get mad at stuff like that. You can get sad, though."

Bill Wingfield died last year. He was a retired virologist for the state department of fish and wildlife, active in his own local habitat as well as in the West Sacramento Historical Society. He helped create the society's annual plant sale as a fundraiser, and he built frog ponds at home on the Wingfields' property.

"We have one pond in the front and two in the back garden," reported Jeri. "The frog chorus just sings — they are so amazing. He was such a naturalist. He took walking tours, and always carried his scientific equipment with him on bicycle."

Several years ago, a regional plan to run a major sewer line through West Sacramento seemed to spell the end of a number of old oak trees behind the Wingfields' Westmore Oaks neighborhood. The trees provided afternoon shade, as well as beauty.

"Their idea was to have this area behind my house as a chain-linked, fenced corridor," she said. "We

An officer reported he was standing by as the car was being hitched to a tow truck, when he "suddenly heard loud screaming and saw (the repo man) being chased."

The suspect was carrying "what looked like a baseball bat and running after the victim, who was backpedaling."

The officer ordered the suspect to stop. At first, the man didn't comply, but then he did and was taken into custody without incident. He had been carrying a three-foot stick. The man went to jail for assault with a deadly weapon.

The repo man said the suspect had taken a swing at him with the stick.

Public can comment on West Sac's big plans

The City of West Sacramento will hold a public meeting about the process of updating its general plan at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, April 28, at the community center.

The updated plan is meant to guide city policy and growth patterns for years to come.

The public will also be allowed to give input on fourth specific growth areas:

■ Stone Lock, consisting of about 215 acres of publicly-owned land along the barge canal near Jefferson Boulevard, mostly stretching east-west next to the canal;

■ Pioneer Bluff, a corridor of old industrial uses, including petroleum "tank farms," along the riverfront of the Sacramento River. The corridor stretches along South River Road from Stone Lock to the U.S. 50 freeway;

■ Liberty Specific Plan area, a planned 1,900-unit, 450-acre area that's part of the planned "northeast village" of Southport. It's located against the river levee and also bounded by Davis Road to the south, the Clarksburg Branch Line Trail to the west, and to Linden Road and its subdivisions to the north;

■ Seaway, a 270-acre project area at the Port of Sacramento. Current zoning allows for such uses as industry, business park and open space, but not housing. The property is located just south of the port's turning basin — along Southport Parkway, west of Lake Washington Boulevard.

The general plan meeting will be held at 1075 West Capitol Avenue.

The "Liberty" project. City officials will be taking public comment on this Southport project area, which will be home to up to 1,900 residential units, as well as three other West Sacramento project areas, at an April 28 public meeting. (from a City of West Sacramento staff report)

Fifty years of Wednesdays:

Dozens came to the West Sacramento Historical Society reception on April 3 at the city community center. The reception launched the opening of a mini-exhibit on the 50th anniversary of the News-Ledger.

Publisher Steve Marschke talked about the past, when the paper was led by lifelong newspaperman Jullis Feher and by Michael Garten. He also spoke about his hopes that the local community will, sometime in the future, take the helm of its own local media outfit to spread news and information in print, online and on a planned new FM radio station. Partners are now at work on this.

The exhibit can be viewed inside the center at 1075 West Capitol Avenue.

Working mom finds no rest for the weary

I was talking to a longtime friend the other evening at my grandson's Little League game and I couldn't help but notice how tired she looked. Thinking she wasn't feeling well or something, I finally decided to mention it to her. She looked over at me with a big smile and said, "No, I'm fine, Daryl. I'm afraid I always look like this on most work nights."

"So, you've really been slaving away at the office lately, hey?" I asked her.

"Yes, it's always incredibly busy at work, but that's not what's really killing me. It's trying to be a very good 21st century wife and mother that's going to end up being the death of me!"

As our conversation continued, my friend made a number of really interesting comments that I had never heard a woman make before, at least not in such logical detail. She said that there were actually times when she wished she could simply be one of those "Leave It To Beaver" mothers who stayed at home — at least while the children were young — and be responsible for nothing more than getting the kids off to school in the mornings, cleaning the house in the afternoon, and having a hot meal on the table for everyone when her husband got home from work.

"In some ways, it must have been heaven," said my friend, "even if all of today's liberated women would throw rocks at me for even mentioning it. Now don't get me wrong, I love being out in the world and being able to have my own job and bring home my own paycheck, but in today's world, that is just the tip of the iceberg in terms of what is expected of women. In the good old days, at least most women had a defined role to play, while in today's world, women are expected to be everything to everyone."

"What do you mean?" I asked her.

"Well, just think about a woman's typical day," she suggested. "I'm up earlier than everyone else because I'm the one who has to drag the kids out of bed and get them off to school. Most days I'm also the one who has to collect them after school and get them to all the activities they are enrolled in, and depending on which mother you are talking to, that can mean music lessons, dancing, karate, gymnastics, swimming lessons, Little League, soccer, and the list goes on and on. Back in the days of 'Leave It To Beaver', all a mother had to do after school was give her kids a snack and shove them out the door to play with their friends until dinner time. Then outside of maybe helping them with their homework later that night, she could actually relax a little bit, watch her favorite TV show, or even read a good book. But you know what I do most days after I leave the office after a long day of work?"

"No, what?"

"Well, after I drop off the kids at whatever organized activity they're doing that evening (this was Little League night), I race to the supermarket where I see the familiar faces of other exhausted working mothers who look like they are going to drop in their tracks as they fill up their shopping carts with the food they're going to need to make dinner that night. And just like me, they are dreading going home to all the other chores that still await them, like cooking, doing the dishes, cleaning up the house enough so it at least looks respectable, and getting a couple of loads of laundry going so that everyone will have something clean to wear the next day. Oh, and most of us also try to fit in going to the gym as often as we can so that our significant other doesn't totally forget we are the love of his life. I literally don't get to sit down until it's finally time to go to the bathroom, and even then there is usually someone standing outside the door talking to me about something they need from me."

"So," I said, "I take it your husband isn't very helpful around the house?"

'Back in the days of "Leave It To Beaver", she said, 'all a mother had to do after school was give her kids a snack and shove them out the door to play with their friends until dinner time.'

"No, it's not that at all," she assured me. "His job is even more exhausting than mine and he works very hard at it, not to mention all the overtime he puts in. So I'm not one of those women who think everything would be better if I had a husband who helped out more, because I have one. No, the problem is that America has somehow turned into a place where it takes two people working fulltime to raise a family and live a respectable middle class life, and to make that possible, women are now being asked to be superhuman. Not only do we have to do all the traditional roles of being mother, housekeeper, cook and loving wife, but we are also expected to do the traditional male role of bringing home a big chunk of the bacon, too."

"So," I said, "what you're saying is that most women are now being asked to be both a man and a woman in today's world?"

"Daryl," said my friend with very tired eyes and plenty of conviction, "the only thing I don't do that men do is stand up and pee, and I could do that, too, if I had to!"

need those trees for the western sun, and they were going to shave everything off and put in this chain-link fence."

The Wingfields were at the center of neighborhood protests and the negotiations with the city and the regional sewage district.

"We saved them," she said. "They moved the pipeline over closer to the opposite side of the right-of-way. I think we saved every shade tree."

After Bill Wingfield died

last year, the history society installed what its president, Thom Lewis, called "our artful tribute to Bill." It included a plaque, as well as a little gardening project done by Dena Kirtley, the City of West Sacramento's arborist.

"She found some acorns in the area," said Jeri Wingfield of Dena Kirtley. The arborist prepped the acorns with time in her home freezer, then took them out and planted them, hoping at least one would survive the squirrels and other perils and become an oak tree to grow in Bill's memory.

"I was so thrilled with that," Jeri Wingfield commented — although it appears none of the acorns have yet to take.

Meanwhile, a few weeks back, somebody gave the Bill Wingfield memorial plaque a thrashing. The broken pieces have been removed, but the story may not be over.

"Dena is working on other ideas," said Jeri Wingfield.

Avenue. An officer found a 36-year old Sacramento woman and a 24-year old male transient at the scene.

The woman admitted being on probation, and said they had been "drawing plans with a green marker for a music video" on the box. She said they had tossed the marking pen a short distance away.

The man had a misdemeanor warrant, and the woman appeared intoxicated and was in possession of four "Locos" beers. Both were arrested.

April 11, 9:15 a.m.

Copper wire was stolen from the side of a Walnut Street residence. The loss was around $200.

April 11, 12:25 p.m.

Loss prevention specialists at a West Capitol supermarket detained a 54-year old man and a 65-year old man, both from Sacramento, for trying to shoplift $240 worth of meat. The store had photos of the same duo from similar shoplifting escapades (albeit successful ones) on March 25 and March 31.

The older suspect initially denied having been to the store before, but after being shown the photos, he admitted they were the same people as those in the photos and said "he took the meat to feed himself and family members."

The M.O. of the pair's crimes?

The man "admitted to placing meat down his pants."

April 12, 12:57 a.m.

"Racing vehicles" were reported on Henshaw Road.

April 11, 3:57 a.m.

A citizen called police, reporting "subjects looking into windows of a vacant house" on 11th Street.

An officer found an unoccupied Chevy pickup truck with no plates in front of the home. A computer check showed the vehicle was stolen. Police contacted three subjects inside, including one woman and her boyfriend.

After being read her rights, the woman said her boyfriend had just driven her to the house from Sacramento. She added "that the situation was odd and she thought the truck was stolen, but she did not want to ask because she did not want to know the answer."

An officer contacted the truck's registered owner, who confirmed the vehicle was stolen and that he did not know the subjects at the home.

The pair were arrested.

April 12, 4:31 p.m.

An officer spotted a Pontiac with one brake light out being driven near Lighthouse Drive and Kegle Drive. The officer pulled the car over at Taber Street.

The passenger was on searchable probation. A search of the truck turned up a pill bottle with 41 tablets of Oxycodone under the seat. The passenger said the pills were not his.

The driver, an Escondido man, told the officer he "would take responsibility for the tablets but he did not know what they were." He was arrested.

April 12, 7:20 p.m.

A 30-year old Sharian Street woman was caught by "loss prevention" workers trying to shoplift at a Riverpoint Court store. She admitted to a police officer that she had no money, and went in with the intent to steal.

April 12, 10:12 p.m.

A business found that someone had rammed or struck the roll-up door of his business on the 2200-block of West Capitol. Nothing was missing from inside, but he thought it was possibly a burglary attempt.

April 13, 7:41 a.m.

A vehicle was reported stolen from Jennings Court in the Bridgeway Lakes area.

April 13, 10 a.m.

A wallet was stolen from inside a car parked on Lighthouse Drive.

April 13, 11:50 a.m.

A police officer responded to a call saying a man was "flashing his penis" and "waving it around" on the 700-block of Jefferson Blvd. He detained a 55-year old man who lived nearby and appeared drunk. A witness signed a citizen's arrest.

April 13, 12:45 p.m.

A woman in the city's north ran out the back door and called police from a neighbor's house after a domestic violence incident. She said her boyfriend "grabbed her by the neck and threw her to the ground."

An officer observed a "fresh scratch" on the woman's neck, along with some bruising. The 28-year old man was arrested.

April 13, 4:45 p.m.

Police responded to a possible arson on the 3300-block of Jefferson Blvd. in Southport. A couch was on fire behind the location. Firefighters doused the flames.

Only one person was found on the scene — a 40-year neighbor, arrested for two outstanding warrants.

April 13, 7:10 p.m.

An officer saw a 47-year old West Capitol Avenue man urinating on a public bus stop.

The man was the only one at the stop, and he admitted drinking the open "211 Steel Reserve Malt Liquor" that was sitting on the bench, and which the officer noted was cold to the touch. The subject was arrested for public drunkenness.

DINING, TRAVEL & ENTERTAINMENT

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Gimme Shelter" (PG-13) -- A tattooed teen named Apple (Vanessa Hudgens) runs away from her abusive addict mother (Rosario Dawson), and finds a new set of hardships ahead of her. Apple -- shaken, unwashed, starving and pregnant -- finds her father (Brendan Fraser) in an affluent New Jersey suburb. Eventually, she finds her way into a shelter for pregnant teens and forms real human connections.

While based on true events, the story is told in stilted, cliched lines that sound like they could only be put together from scraps of old PSAs. This isn't to discredit the performances. Hudgens has never been further from her peppy Disney Channel image.

"Gloria" (R) -- Single and over 50, Gloria leads a fulfilling life outside of her office job. She's into yoga, self-improvement classes and keeping up with her adult children. The audience first sees her moving confidently through a nightclub, dancing and checking out other singles. Gloria's life turns a corner when she meets Rodolfo, a slightly older man who helps Gloria embrace her passion for life.

This Chilean import strikes a fine balance between laughter and drama.

Suthep Pongam in 'The Rocket'

Gloria isn't a wacky older dame, nor is she a sad story about life's later years. She's a three-dimensional person at a point where she wants love in her life, but she's strong enough to not fall apart without it.

"The Rocket" (Unrated) -- Ahlo is a 10-year-old Laotian boy who must be bad luck. He was born a twin, but his brother did not survive -- an ill omen, as superstition says that one twin will be cursed and the other blessed. One day, Ahlo's village receives news that they have to leave their land because it will be flooded to make the reservoir for a new dam. Of course, people are quick to blame such misfortune on Ahlo once they find out he's a twin. The boy decides he's going to re-write his fate -- he's going to enter a rocket-building contest and win. "The Rocket" tells a unique, transporting and uplifting story.

"The Selfish Giant" (Unrated) -- Best pals and partners in crime, Arbor and Swiftly are perpetually in trouble at home and at school. Both are adolescents living in a bleak and recessed British town brimming with abandoned lots and rusty metal. Arbor is the wilier one who gets Swiftly to ditch school. The boys start getting paid by a local scumbag for bringing in stolen scrap metal and wires with their horse carriage. From the beginning, you can see tragedy stalking the pair.

"The Most Dangerous Man in America: The Making of Douglas MacArthur"
 by Mark Perry
 (Basic Books, $29.99)
 Reviewed by Larry Cox

Even a half-century after his death, Gen. Douglas MacArthur remains one of the most controversial military leaders in American history. His accomplishments often were overshadowed by his outsized personality, his self-importance and his disregard for civilian authority. In fact, it was this disregard that caused him to clash with President Harry Truman, triggering his sensational firing.

MacArthur was born in 1880 in Little Rock, Ark. After training at West Point, he joined the U.S. Army engineers, and served with distinction in France during World War I.

In 1932, Democratic presidential candidate Franklin Roosevelt dubbed MacArthur "the most dangerous man in America." Roosevelt was aware of the incredible popularity MacArthur had earned from both political parties following World War I, and he knew the war hero could prove an obstacle for his New Deal plans if the general decided to make a run for the White House.

After FDR was elected president, he defused MacArthur by offering him a permanent but largely ceremonial post in the Philippines, which he kept until his promotion to commander of the U.S. Army forces in the Far East as America began gearing up for war with Japan.

MacArthur inspired extreme emotions. Army Air Corps chief Benjamin Foulois perhaps summed it up best, saying MacArthur was the kind of man people either deeply respected or hated with a passion. It wasn't difficult to dislike MacArthur. He was headstrong, vain, had a rebellious streak ... and a massive ego. His capricious personality even came close to sabotaging the American war effort.

Military historian Mark

Perry is convinced that MacArthur's legacy has been unfairly skewed, and he sets out to put the record straight in his new book. Perry contends that despite his flaws, MacArthur became a military legend who not only led America to victory in the Pacific, but also reshaped modern warfare in the process.

Cast in Iron

Cast-iron skillets, pots and Dutch ovens are enjoying a surge in popularity among cookware users all across America, and no wonder: It's inexpensive, long lasting, eco-friendly, sustainable, versatile and healthy! Cast iron is no longer just for the camper or cowboy -- today, it's a staple piece of cookware in any kitchen helmed by a cook who loves good food.

Traditional cast iron is the original non-stick cookware. It is seasoned with vegetable oil baked onto the iron at a high temperature, creating its natural, easy-release properties. The more you cook, the better it gets. Seasoning also protects cast iron from moisture -- and rust. Because you create, maintain and even repair the "seasoning," your cookware can last 100 years or more. Chemical non-stick coatings cannot be repaired, greatly limiting their lifespan.

Cast iron also retains heat to cook evenly without hot spots. Its ability to withstand and maintain very high cooking temperatures makes it a good choice for searing or frying, and its excellent heat retention makes it a good option for long-cooking stews or braised dishes.

Cooking with cast iron even may offer health benefits. An American Di-etic Association study found that cast-iron cookware can leach significant amounts of dietary iron into food, which may benefit anemics and those with iron deficiencies.

With the proliferation of television cooking shows and a rise in consumer demand, Lodge broadened its variety of cookware with its Porcelain Enamelled Cast Iron, in which a smooth porcelain surface is bonded to the iron. The product marries the best of both materials: The heat retention of cast iron and porcelain enamel's beauty and resistance to acidic and alkaline foods, which unlike cast iron, allows it to be used to marinate and refrigerate.

A new cookbook, Lodge Cast Iron Nation, provides 200 recipes curated from Lodge's network of high-profile chefs and cast-iron cookware fans from around the country. Packed with classic regional casseroles, soups and stews, new twists on old favorites, plus desserts from the icebox and the oven. This cookbook proves that cast iron isn't just for cornbread.

CHICKEN CROQUETTES

I've adapted this family recipe from the Lodge Cast Iron Nation cookbook, doubling the amount of the White Cream Gravy used as a binder in the recipe to serve as a side with the croquettes.

White Cream Gravy:
 5 tablespoons unsalted butter
 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
 1/2 cup all-purpose flour
 1 teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon black pepper
 1 tablespoon poultry seasoning
 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
 2 cups whole milk
 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

Chicken Croquettes:
 2 cups cooked chicken cut into small pieces or 2 cups cooked ground chicken or turkey
 1/2 cup finely minced green onions, green tops and white ends
 1 large egg, beaten
 3/4 cup fine breadcrumbs or Panko breadcrumbs
 Vegetable oil

1. Melt the butter and add the oil to a Lodge 10-inch cast iron skillet over medium heat. Add flour, salt, black pepper, poultry seasoning and cayenne pepper. Stir for 3 to 4 minutes, without coloring the flour. Slowly pour in the milk and the Worcestershire sauce, stirring all the while, and continue to stir until the white sauce thickens. Pour half of the white sauce into a bowl and set aside.

2. Add the chicken and the green onion to the remaining white sauce in the pan. Place the chicken mixture into a bowl, cover and set it in the refrigerator for at least 30 minutes to cool.

To Make the Croquettes:

1. Place a beaten egg into a small bowl. Place the breadcrumbs on a plate. When the chicken mixture is cool, take a rounded tablespoon of the mixture; first dredge it in the crumbs, then coat with the beaten egg, then dredge the croquette with the crumbs again. Refrigerate the croquettes in a single layer in a covered dish for several hours to firm up.

2. In a 10-inch cast-iron skillet, heat 1 inch of oil over medium to high heat. When the oil is hot, fry the croquettes in batches (don't crowd them in the pan because they will steam and won't get crisp), turning often until croquettes are a golden brown. Drain on paper towels.

3. Re-heat the reserved White Cream Gravy and serve it on the side with the Chicken Croquettes. Serves 6 to 8.
